50X1-HUM

1. On 10 June 1951, the Pfullitz Kaserne or Lemsler Strasse, Rostock (1115/0 (1) quartered about 1,500 troops who wore red-bordered black epaulets, most of them with artillery insignia. The installation was occupied to capacity. About 300 unarmed troops were engaged in drill in the barracks yard and 300 other troops practiced aiming with hand grenades. About 200 soldiers rested in front of a garage. Nine soldiers wearing red-bordered black epaulets with artillery insignia and carrying signal equipment and a range finder, marched into the installation from the restricted area 1,000 meters southwest of the barracks installation. Gun guns of shot at 37-mm caliber and covered with canvas stood in the barracks yard. A wooden structure, apparently a new shed, about 100 meters long, 20 meters wide and 3 meters high, was built along the fence on the west side of the installation.

No training activity or heavy weapons were observed. A large tent, about 50 meters long, 15 meters wide and 3 meters high, was erected on the east side of the barracks yard. The construction work on the annex buildings was continued. Truck [redacted] came from the 50X1-HUM Putlitz Kaserne, entered the installation. (2)
3. On 10 June, a restricted area of about 300 x 60 meters and surrounded by a barbed fence 2.5-meter high was observed 1,500 meters southwest of the Putlitz Kaserne about 50 meters south of the road to Gross-Beuthen. The flat roofs of two sheds of 50 x 12 x 15 meters projected over the fence. [redacted] the restricted area was not used to quarter troops. Truck [redacted] stood at the gate. (2)
4. Between 1 and 6 June, the Putlitz Kaserne on Lander Strasse was occupied by about 1,500 troops. From 12 to 15 x 76.2-mm AT guns and 20 guns of a heavier caliber were seen in the billeting areas. Four armored half track vehicles each towed a 76-mm AT gun. One half track vehicle mounted a machine gun, a second a 20-mm gun and the two others a 77-mm AT gun each. The troops in groups of 30 to 40 men practiced with 76.2-mm AT guns and were engaged in clearing the guns.

(1) [redacted] the elements of the corps Army Brig of the LADK 13. Little German can be carried in the Furtlitz Kaserne and, partly, in the barracks installation on Ulmenstrasse. To estimate, estimates appear several thousand men. According to information available, the strength does not exceed about 1,500 persons. The information can be quite, to a large extent, erroneous in its particulars, although the Germans

AT guns are reported from Rostock for the first time. The 20 guns of heavier caliber mentioned in paragraph 4 may be 100-mm AT guns or 122-mm or 152-mm guns. [redacted] it is believed 50X1-HUM possible that the unit is equipped with 122-mm or 152-mm artillery pieces. As the AT artillery insignia was observed with only about 10 percent of the soldiers of the brigade, the brigade probably is a mixed AT artillery and artillery unit. The 37-mm AA guns [redacted] 50X1-HUM indicate the presence of components of the 3d Gds AAA Div in the Puslitz Kaserne, although no information has yet been 50X1-HUM received that units of this division had been shipped to Rostock. 50X1-HUM

(3) Possibly a temporary Kommandatura or similar agency.

(4) [redacted] the Fluorplate Kaserne was occupied by 1,000 troops in mid-May 1952. [redacted]

(5) [redacted] a firing range is located on Rostock Heath, just west of Hinrichshaven. The range is possibly used for practices by units in Rostock. [redacted]

[redacted] there is a connection between this firing range and a large parking area which, in early June 1952, was determined in the woods east of Doberan and in which [redacted] the 9th Sig Bn of the Second Gds Mecc Army was seen. [redacted]
